

Global Fair Pay Charter

Eight Articles, One Standard

The Global Fair Pay Charter was established by the Fair Pay Foundation in 2024 and aligns itself with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. Signatories commit to all eight articles in full.

Article I: FAIR REMUNERATION

Pay reflects the skill, effort, and responsibility of the role. Equal work is rewarded with equal pay, regardless of gender, ethnicity, religion, nationality, or age.

Article II: LIVING WAGE COMMITMENT

Wages should stretch beyond bare survival — covering food, water, housing, education, healthcare, transport, clothing, and a cushion for the unexpected.

Article III: CYCLICAL REVIEW OF WAGES

The Fair Pay Foundation works with governments and industry to review pay on a regular cycle, adjusting for cost of living and inflation, with the process kept transparent.

Article IV: EQUAL OPPORTUNITIES

No worker is shut out of benefits, training, or promotion on the basis of gender, race, religion, or disability.

Article V: FREEDOM OF ASSOCIATION

Workers retain the right to form and join trade unions of their choosing, to bargain collectively, and to assemble peacefully over their working conditions.

Article VI: HEALTH AND SAFETY

Working and living environments are held to local and international safety standards, treated as central to the Charter rather than an afterthought.

Article VII: CHILD LABOUR AND FORCED LABOUR

Both are rejected without exception, in line with International Labour Organisation standards on minimum working age and forced labour.

Article VIII: ENVIRONMENTAL SUSTAINABILITY

Signatories commit to responsible resource use, biodiversity protection, and sustainable agricultural practice — including renewable energy and water conservation.
